

Today, while standing in a long line to purchase groceries, I listened to a woman speaking loudly into her cell phone go into great intimate, personal, descriptive detail about her most recent gynecological exam and the birth of her teenage daughter's child for which she was present. I don't need or want to hear that on an airplane.